

Seminary Wives Institute is pleased to offer ASYNCHRONOUS COURSES

This format benefits our distance students, many of whom enjoyed taking our classes since March 2020 in an online Zoom format while we were out of the classroom due to Covid-19. We pleased to continue these courses for distance students although they are second best to being here in person. One advantage is that these classes can be taken at one's own pace!

We have worked hard to make these classes as close to the live classroom experience as possible. We have recorded our lectures in the studios of Southern Productions here on our campus so that they quality is much better than a Zoom recording. We have posted all of the handouts and helps for classes just as they are offered on campus. And we are available to answer questions you might have about logistics and content as needed.

These classes are for women who are either preparing for service as ministry or missionary wives—or perhaps are already on the field and desire more training. Students in the Louisville area should plan to take these same classes in person when they are offered. Special permission will be needed for a local student wife to enroll for asynchronous classes. Possible exceptions would be:

- students preparing to apply for service with the IMB who need to quickly fulfill the college hours requirement and thus need to take our approved courses in the summer or winter when we are not meeting
- students who are 1-2 courses short of graduating and need to pick up an extra class quickly in order to complete the requirements
- students who have a major hindrance that keeps them from attending classes with us in Norton Hall
- students who wish to take additional electives that are offered asynchronously and are not currently available on campus
- students who wish to take Essentials async so they can take additional electives on campus
- interested on campus students will need to contact us by email to make their request. We will have to assist with registration since they may be enrolled simultaneously in both on campus and online classes.

Logistics for Asynchronous Classes:

- All classes must be taken for a grade, just as they are on campus. We have never allowed auditing and are not allowing it through asynchronous classes either. Students must pay the small class fee ($20 for current SBTS student wives; $40 for non student wives ) before they are granted access to a class on Canvas, our online learning platform. If they are accessing the videos but are not uploading assignments in a timely fashion, we will discontinue their access and their fee will not be refunded. Students who are removed from classes for failure to upload assignments will not be allowed to register for classes in the future. We will be gracious to those who have extenuating circumstances and will grant extensions for reading and assignments but you must contact us by email at swi@sbts.edu to request help.

- Our classes are geared for seminary wives, as you can tell by our name, but we have always welcomed like-minded women from the community to enroll in most of our classes when space allows and will do the same online. We will ask you to provide some information about your particular situation when you apply to take courses.
- All of our classes require proficiency in English without exception. Students must be able to read text books, process lectures and do assignments in English. We have always welcomed women for whom English is not their primary language but our classes are not going to work as immersion classes to learn English so please don't try to take them for that purpose.
- New students will complete a new student application form found on our webpage specifically for asynchronous classes. They may choose more than one class at that time and payment will be due for all before access is granted, assuming the application is approved.
- Once a student is registered as an asynchronous student, she will be able to go to my.sbts.edu and register herself for SW700 classes which is the designation for async classes. The online payment will be processed and she will be added to the class on Canvas within a day or two in most cases. Students may register for several classes at once but one at a time is fine as well.
- When all the assignments have been completed, it would be helpful for a student to email swi@sbts.edu with a quick message to state that a specific course (provide name and course number) has been completed so that we can log on to Canvas and finalize the grade.
- We realize that some students may complete a six session class in less than six weeks, and that's fine! We also know some are taking courses in this format due to lack of time and may need a whole semester to complete a six session class. Therein lies an advantage of asynchronous classes.
- We have posted a document on our webpage that has detailed course descriptions for the asynchronous courses that are available and we update it when new courses are posted. The current version is correct as of June 1, 2022. Please access that document so you know more than the just the title of a class before you apply/register. Once a class is available, it will remain so indefinitely.

The ten classes required for the SWI certificate are in bold. Three electives of the student's choosing are also needed to fulfill the 13 total credits needed for the basic certificate and seven electives are needed for the advanced certificate. See the document on our webpage regarding graduation for further details about what is required. Note that some electives offered on campus are not being offered as asynchronous classes.

Students who complete all of the requirements to graduate will be welcome to join us as we honor SWI graduates at Boyce College commencement in May each year. If you are unable to attend, we will certainly ship your certificate to you.
